

NOTINGHAM TRENT STUDENTS' UNION YOUR Student Life

Contents

Your studies might be the reason you're here at NTU but at the Students' Union, we understand that come assessment season, they can seem a little overwhelming. That's why we've put together this guide. It's filled with useful tips, resources and advice to help you succeed.

| Study tips               | 3 |

Cramming just means you'll be more stressed closer to the deadline. Starting early is key to making sure you're prepared.

Make a plan

Speaking of prepared, making a plan is also a great way to take your studying to the next level. Plan what you'll be studying and when to help you avoid procrastination.

Take breaks

No-one can concentrate for hours on end so make sure you take regular breaks and get some necessary head space if you want to focus properly.

Sleep

Sleep is essential for proper brain function so making sure you get enough of it during assessment season is crucial. Cut down on the social commitments and make sure you get your 8 hours.

Eat well

Like sleep, eating proper food can be so beneficial for your brain function. Blueberries, eggs and almonds are all well-known brain foods so try and incorporate them into your diet where you can.

Try different ways of studying

Figuring out your study style can be a huge help when it comes to assessments. Test whether you work best writing things out, listening to them or looking at them visually and adapt your revision techniques accordingly.

Set goals

Whether it's the number of hours you study a day or a certain amount of words to reach by the end of the week, set goals so you have something concrete to work towards.

Practice past papers

If there are past papers available, use them. Try and set yourself the same amount of time as your actual exam too to see how you perform under pressure.

Ask questions

If you're struggling with something, don't suffer in silence. Ask a friend, lecturer or someone who'll be able to help sooner rather than later. There's always someone who'll be on hand to help.

Academic terms explained

Academia comes with a lot of complex terminology. Here are some common words you might hear in relation to your studies and what they mean.

Academic Appeals

Two stage process to appeal the formal outcome of your results if there is a situation that has affected your studies that you could tell the uni about or there is a mistake during the assessment process.

Academic Irregularities

An investigation process, possibly resulting in penalties, if there has been an allegation of cheating in an assessment.

Fitness to Study

Policy relating to your ability to engage with your course.

Student Code of Behaviour

Sets out the behaviours expected from students whilst at NTU and what could happen if they are not met.

NEC

If something happens that is beyond your control and interferes with your studies, you'll need to submit an NEC (Notice of Extenuating Circumstances).

R4R

Request for reconsideration. If you feel your work has been unfairly marked, you can request to have to reconsidered.

Useful resources

For organisation

Evernote allows you to keep all your notes in one place digitally and even sync them across devices

For productivity

The Pomodoro technique helps keep you in your optimum concentration zone, alternating 25 minutes of work with five-minute rests. Here's a web app version keep on top of your rests and bursts of work.

For referencing

Haven't quite got your head around your references? NTU's Referencing Guide will tell you everything you need to know.

For relaxation

Headspace is an app that's designed to give your brain a break. Once you've done for the day, set some time aside and use it to relax properly.
